LUNAR & PLANETARY LABORATORY

Professor of Practice Workload Policy Approved by PtyS/LPL faculty, January 2024

Career-track Professor of Practice Faculty in the Department of Planetary Sciences and Lunar and Planetary Laboratory focus on teaching undergraduate students and developing innovative teaching content and methodologies and providing service to the Department.

The standard workload for a career-track Professor Practice faculty member consists of the following:

- 70-85% teaching, which includes the development and delivery of PTYS undergraduate courses and programs. Professors of Practice may advise students as appropriate.
- 10% service, which includes service to the Department and University, participation or leadership in national or international scientific organizations or advisory groups, and outreach to schools and the general public.
- 5-15% research, which includes appropriate areas of science or science education.

Professors of Practice may negotiate their workload with the department head to meet the needs of the Department.
